This Yearbook is dedicated to Mr. Agnoli and Ms. Gliga, who have both touched more lives than it is possible to count.

We'd also like to give a special thanks to Woody and Rich.
We could not have made this book without them.

Letter from the Editor

Dear Everyone,

This year has been crazy; so much has happened and yet when I look back and try to remember, it seems like nothing has happened at all. For me though, that's true for all of high school. Each week seems to last months, dragging on until the weekend finally comes. And we all say we can't wait for summer, but then when we reach the end, the weeks and months seem to have gone by in less than an instant.

If you think about it, this year in itself was not unique: there was drama; there was stress; there was love. Friendships were formed and broken and repaired. Life went on. What makes this year so special is what each of us has done to grow, how we have advanced and pushed ourselves toward where want to go and who we want to be. Every single one of us – freshmen, sophomores, juniors, and seniors alike – have all changed and hopefully grown up a little. That's what's important about this year and every other. None of us will ever be the best, smartest, happiest, or most succesful, but hopefully every year we get a little closer to reaching our greatest goals.

This year especially, everyone was really helpful in the making of this book. The members of both the class and the club were all talented and motivated. And they weren't the only ones who made this book possible: all the students and faculty members were always willing to send us information and pictures...and they even did it on time.

For the longest time I had no idea what to write for this letter – there was always either too much to say, or nothing at all, or I was too stressed, or too lazy... I tried again and again but it always just turned into overly sentimental mush that really said nothing at all. I even debated not writing anything. Then, when I was visiting college with a friend, it finally hit me: this was it. I had always known about and looked foward to the end of the year but it was finally sinking in that this was really the end. This book is my and many other seniors' last mark on the high school. It contains 206 pages of memories. I, and everyone else who helped put this together, hope you enjoy this and take every day of every year to make a new memory that deserves to be put in a book.

- Truda Silberstein

Letter from the Principal

We have reached that part of the year where mixed emotions begin to creep into our daily lives. The Freshmen are very close to no longer being Freshmen, and they will view their transition from year one to year two as one of relief. The beginning phase is over and the excitement of no longer being the new kid on the block fades into the summer. Our Sophomores have survived the MCAS pressure, only to find themselves face to face with the all-important Junior year, where their minds begin to daringly think of college and the future. The Juniors see one hurdle left: the preparation of the big finish, where they not only have to plan one last high school year, but begin to contemplate planning life after. Then, of course, there are the Seniors.

This book will keep the candle of their senior life alight for many years to come. Their pictures, their friends' pictures, pictures of those that should have been friends, and the wonder of why they weren't. Snapshots of glory: newspaper awards, National Honor Society, famous sports runs, plays, musicals, and the list goes on, will be replayed. There will be pictures of teachers whose true value may not be recognized until years down the road when they are reflected upon in the name of nostalgia.

Nostalgia is defined as a wistful desire to return in thought or in fact to a former time in one's life. Most of you will experience this as you gaze sometime in the future back upon the past within these pages. We hope that you have taken advantage of all that we have had to offer.

We hope you have drained as much knowledge as possible from each faculty member. We hope that you have learned to take chances, learned to challenge yourself, learned to work through adversity, and most of all, learned to love and value this special place.

Some of you will be moving on while others of us stay behind. We stay to keep those feelings and visions alive with each subsequent group of young people who will follow in all of your footsteps. We are Vineyarders, we are MVRHS, and we are proud. Keep up the tradtion, represent us well, and live what you were taught to dream.

Todd Deely is a new History teacher at MVRHS this year. He grew up in Springfield, MA and then graduated from Umass Dartmouth in 1995. It was the only school he applied to and he loved it. He was on Varsity of the Track & Field and Cross Country teams in both high school and college.

Mr. Deely is not married but is engaged to his "beautiful fiancé, Caitlin." They live in East Falmouth with their two cats, Simon and Sammy, and he commutes on the 6:00 boat every morning to get to school.

When asked if he ever skipped class in high school, Mr. Deely said, "No because I played sports all three seasons and we took our responsibility seriously. I probably wouldn't have minded missing a day of classes every now and then but didn't because I would NEVER let my teammates down like that."

If someone had told him Mr. Deely would become a teacher in the beginning of high school, he wouldn't have believed him. Then in college he changed his major from English to History. He became a teacher for two reasons: because he loves history and being able to work with it every day, and also because he wanted to become a coach and doing both made sense. He loves teaching because every day is a completely different and new experience with unique colleagues and students.

Kate Holter is also a History teacher at the high school. When asked to tell us a little about herself, she said, "I've been living on the island for five years now, and while I am not married and have no children, I'm lucky to have incredible friends and colleagues here. I grew up in Worcester as the oldest of four kids, and I'm very close to my family, but I'm not a homebody. Sometimes I even find it hard to sit still! I think yoga would be great for me, but all that stillness is tough stuff. I'm an idealist. My want-to-do list is ten pages long. I have seven different magazine subscriptions and big plans to learn how to play the piano. A coach of mine in high school used to always say: If you believe it, you can achieve it. After hearing that so many times I actually started to believe that, and I think it's the reason I've had so many amazing experiences in my life. Part of the reason I love teaching so much is because I'm frequently exposed to new ideas, experiences, and people. Teaching history gets me there even faster - there are a million stories to explore when you crack open the past. The choices made by the people who have lived before us have resulted in an immeasurable pot of wisdom, right at our fingertips. What's not enticing about that?"

"I was jumping on my uncle's water bed with a friend and all of a sudden it exploded. Water got everywhere. When he asked us about it we pretended we didn't know what he was talking about... FES"

"One afternoon I was walking back from lunch and there was no one else in the halls but me. All of a sudden I saw a girl in just spandex and a sports bra and a boy in just jeans run-skipping down the hall. They both had painted lines all over their bodies. As if that wasn't weird enough, suddenly I saw a couple guys pushing a platform on wheels with a boy playing the harp sitting on top down the hall from the opposite direction. Hah hah, only at MVRHS.... FES"

"In my freshman year of track I always overpacked my running bag with extra clothes. One day before practice I had underwear in my pocket that must have gotten stuck in the dryer. I had just reached the track when the bright pink granny-panties fell out. Everyone started walking over so I pretended they weren't mine but I definitely got a few judging looks... FES"

"Last summer I was going swimming with a few of my friends, my boyfriend, and some of his friends. I forgot my bathing suit so I borrowed one that didn't really fit too well. When we got to the beach we all went to go in the calm water and I decided to run and dive. When I came up everyone was laughing at me and one of my boyfriend's friends was hiding his eyes. I didn't understand what was going on for a good 30 seconds but finally I understood what my boyfriend meant by repeating the word "bathing suit bathing suit bathing suit" over and over again. The entire top half of my suit had fallen down and I had been completely flashing the guy who was looking away. I'm still friends with that guy and to this day he makes fun of me for it... FES"

"I was on Skype with this girl I really liked but when she hung up I thought she swore at me. I called her back to see what I had done that made her mad but she didn't answer. I was really nervous and kept calling and texting her. About a half an hour later she texted me asking what was wrong. It turned out she had just gone to take a shower. After my freakout she stopped talking to me... FES"

"After practice when I was really, really tired. I went into the girls' locker room so I could cut through to the hall. I got halfway before I finally realized that a boys away team was in there and in the middle of changing for a game. I froze. When they realized I was in there they started yelling and cat calling. I had to walk all the way out with everyone watching me. My face was so red!! ... FES"

Name: Joseph Turney

Grade: Sophomore

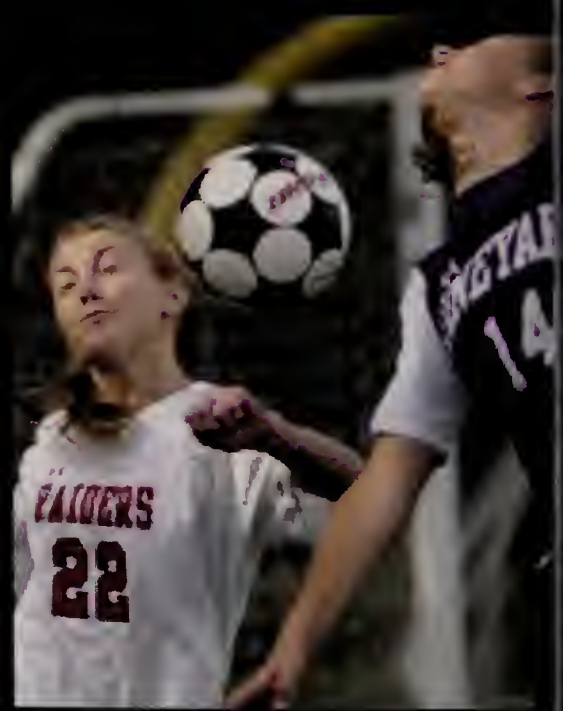
Sports: Varsity Football, Basketball, Track

Favorite Sport: Football

Most Memorable Moment:
Scoring in The 2011 Nantucket Game

Joe Turney's favorite part of being on the varsity football team was having the chance to play with the seniors this year. He said. "playing with the seniors was a special thing." His biggest accomplishment was being the only sophomore on the team that had a starting position. Joe scored his first career varsity touchdown on October 22 at Case. He rushed the ball 32 times for 170 yards in the season. Joe will be a huge aspect to the team for the years to come and other teams should always keep there eyes out for #23.

Name: Emily Debettencourt



Grade: Freshman

Favorite Sport: Basketball

Most Memorable Moment:
Scoring her First Varsity Goal Against Somerset.

Emily is a two sport varsity athlete in her first year at the high school. She played full time varsity soccer in the Fall and now splits time between Varsity and JV Basketball, and is planning to play lacrosse for the first time in the Spring. "My favorite thing about playing at the varsity level is being to play and meet the upperclassmen, and get out of school," she said laughing. Emily is a great athlete and is already making an impact on MVRHS sports. She is a force on the field, the court, and teams will need to keep track of her for the next four years.

he Leaves Have Broken Spines
Sam Valley

My cheeks are pinker than my lips are, and my eyes feel like exploding. Today I decided that eed to drink more water; that that would make things better. My lips would stop chapping, and I'd be ergetic and beautiful. Pretty girls with drunken lisps are sitting in the bus seats with no holes, and my rcastic sighs show in the cold air in front of me. I guess the bus driver's mittens prevent him from abbing the heat knob.

When I was young I used to have nightmares of living land-locked. Like water was my oxygen, d open air. But as I look around, I'm stranded at sea, and it's more of a hell than anything. I'm choking "open air" as a solid, clogging my nostrils and throat. The closest thing I have to mainland is broken kia games and plastic t-food.

There's been a knot in my eyelashes all day skewering my corneas. I've been stretching my face weird ways. People even told me to stop. They told me I looked ugly. I thanked them for the obvious, cause if I was pretty, there wouldn't be a gaping hole in the pleather of my bus seat. There's no Santa aus in high school.

Bus rides make me dizzy, but not the good kind. Like I said, my eyes feel like exploding. I have tell them not to over and over. The bus sizzled and sunk, and I stepped into the rain. Sometimes I try d forget to feel the drops. If you do it right, it looks like the leaves are shivering and cracking. Today working. It feels like magic. All the governmental bullshit of the day is just silly now. I giggle and curl my lips and pity the silly little men occupying Wallstreet and everywhere else in the galaxy. I skipped ound the corner because I was happy, and I thought nobody was watching. The girl with a fake STD w me and my face got hot.

The frame of my door sucks. It shrieks when you touch it. Today It screamed at me and I felt d and I got a lighter and I did it again. I was barefoot except for tights, and the ground was a puddle. ood there and lit my last cigarette, and looked really stupid and pigeon toed. The red of the flame ks unnatural, but then again the whole stick is just a rollup of unnatural. My socks are seeping out. night be the dust of the day, or just my skin color seeping into the puddle, but it looks like espresso. I sh my throat hurt because that would mean that I don't do this often.

CHESS
THE MUSICAL

As this year's annual musical, the theatre department presented "Chess". Performed in November, the musical portrays the story of a complicated love triangle between two of the world's top chess players. An American, Freddy Trumper (played by Taylor McNeely) and a Russian, Anatoly Sergievsky (played by Gage Rancich) are both competing to win the world championship and Florence (played by Haley Hewson), their love interest, amidst the Cold War.

GOSSIP

Every year, the BravEncore Drama Troupe and the MVRHS Theatre department enter the MTEG Drama festival, competing with a forty-minute play. This year, they presented Gossip, set in the imaginary southern town of Rumor Mills, where the ED Talk Show is coming to town. The play, written by Kate Murray, Alyson Carr and the theater classes 1 and 2, won the preliminary and participated in the semi-finals.

Prague & Paris

Last Spring, the Minnesingers took a very exciting trip to Europe. They spent six days in Prague and three days in Paris. In Prague, they performed on the streets and in cathedrals that they were invited to, such as Colonnade Hall, shown in the poster below. In Paris they explored the city, saw museums and monuments, and of course sang on the streets for all to hear.

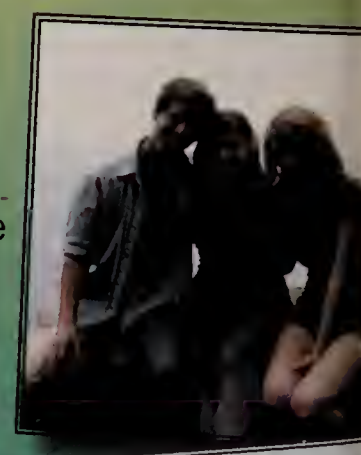
Close Up is a group that learns how politics work. They examine different aspects of government and politics, and how they affect Americans' daily lives. Last Spring, Close Up group went to Washington DC to see our government as "close up" as possible.

French Trip

Last Spring a group of French students took a trip to France. They visited places in Paris and Le Cote d'Azul. They were in Paris for three days and then traveled south on the TGV. They saw many museums and monuments including the Notre Dame, The Louvre, and the King's Garden in Versailles.



Article From the High School View:

/olunteers Travel to Navajo Nation"

During April vacation, 12 ;ional high students flew into the arid at of Black Mesa, Arizona to help ıovate and rebuild homes for the vajo Indian tribe. The volunteering dents traveled as part of the Martha's ıeyard Ecumenical Youth Group to the urch of Joy on the Black Mesa Navajo ;ervation.

"It was pretty amazing," said uth group leader Melissa Pitt, one of chaperones for the trip. "When you sed your eyes, it felt like you were in other country. I think the kids learned a from it."

Indeed, junior Kathryn Antonsson k away lessons on the most basic of ıilarities between cultures by drawing parallels with her Vineyard community. "I learned a lot about Navajo tribe. It's like the Island in a lot of ways," she said. "People are close. It's a very tight knit ıily that's spread out over a large area. They all know and care about each other even though they're es apart."

While the relationships between people may be comparable to Island life, the most prominent tural differences are manifested in social behaviors, according to Ms. Pitt.

"In general, the people we met were more shy, more quiet, maybe won't look you in the eye. But e thing we all noticed was their optimism in the face of adverse conditions, she said."

Utilities in the tribe were limited. "A lot of these people have next to nothing," said Ms. Pitt. "One ıily was living in a camping tent. Others had no running water in their homes, or water but no heat. ey didn't have telephones. And they still feel blessed to have what they have."

"The physical labor was intense sometimes," said senior Chris Pitt. "And we didn't have much in ms of materials. For example, I was re-roofing a house, and when we took off the shingles, it ex-sed all the rotting wood underneath. So we needed to travel 20 miles to the nearest hardware store get recycled wood to replace it."

Kathryn was surprised by the conditions in which the Navajo people she met lived. "There are showers – just a tiny stream of water that's barely heated by the sun. Very few houses have actual ımbing, and electricity is minimal everywhere," she said. "It was a little rough. But I definitely learned t how first world we are and how much we take it for granted."

On the last night of the trip, the Church of Joy offered a Navajo taco dinner to the volunteers to vard them for their efforts and give them a lasting taste of culture.

"People were so supportive and they gave so much thanks," said Kathryn. "That really came ough in the taco dinner, and that feeling of appreciation is awesome. It makes the cold showers rth it."

Chris said, "At the end of it, it felt great to give them something that they didn't have the ;ources to do on their own. We helped in a way that wasn't abstract, but real and physical."

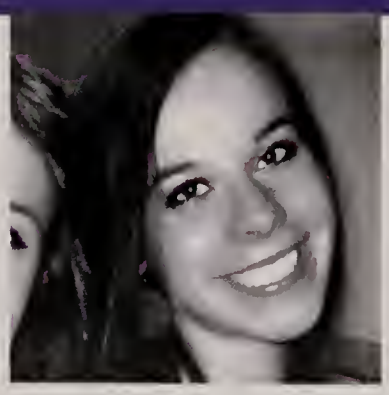
DIEGO FREITAS

Diego Freitas was born in Sao Paulo, Brazil on August 20th, 1994. He enjoys playing football and running track at MVRHS. During the summer of 2004 Diego moved from his home in Brazil to Oak Bluff Martha's Vineyard. He has not gone back to visit Brazil yet. Learning English took 3 months so he cou speak fluently by the time he was in fourth grade. When he first came here he said that "the languag (English) was very fast" and hard to understand. Diego said that the two cultures (American and Brazillian) are very different from each other. The area where he's from in Brazil has "a lot of violence it", he said, "it's a lot more peaceful on the island." Also in Brazil he only played one sport while here h plays two. And while he didn't go to church much in Brazil, here he goes regularly.



CHRISTINE JANAK

"I was born in La Jolla, California, but I don't consider that my home. When I was less than two years old, r parents and I moved to the Czech Republic, because my dad is Czech and he wanted to move back to h homeland. I lived in a small town called Št'áhlavice, a 20 minute drive from the city of Pilsen (proud mak of the world famous Pilsner beer). It has a population of about 300 people, so everybody knows everybo else. It was a rewarding experience having grown up in this wonderful little town. It taught me to be awa of what I do, to be respectful, and to never walk through the farm on the bulls' side unless I wanted to chased down. We played in the gigantic piles of hay all the time though! The other kids and I, not havi much to do in a mostly senior-citizen-populated village, had to find ways of entertaining ourselves, a that was one of them. We spent most of our days playing ball or other weird made-up games outside. T Czech Republic is very culturally different from the US. For example, families would often live with or ve close to the grandparents, who rarely went into retirement homes. Elders are generally respected mu more than they are here. When I'd come home from school, my grandmother would always make r do my homework before anything else, no matter how luringly sunny and warm it was outside. This g me into the habit of getting my work done and rarely procrastinating. At the time I hated it, but looki back I am very grateful. Also, the schools there are very different. Kids learn how to write in cursi in first grade, as well as world geography and long division by third or fourth grade, and they use r plates and silverware in the cafeterias. My parents enrolled me in a new school basically every ye because they felt the schools I went to weren't challenging enough for me. In fourth grade, I had take a public bus for 45 mins and a train for 10 to get to my rigorous Catholic school in the city. Th taught me how to be responsible and independent early on. All in all, I'm glad I got the live the fi half of my life in the Czech Republic, because it taught me valuable lessons I probably wouldn't ha learned here. It also made me into the cultured person I am today, and probably helped me get in colleg

Students

JENNIFER SILVA

Jennifer was born in Minas Gerais on February 11th, 1994 and is now a Junior at MVRHS. She moved to the island when she was 2 years old and attended the Edgartown School. She often visits Brazil and says that the two cultures are very different. Brazil has different foods, music and styles of parenting. The parents are really strict in Brazil and almost everyone is religious and goes to church. School is really different too. They have fewer hours in school then we do (5 hours or less). They also learn stuff sooner than we do here and high school only takes 3 years. The food is different as well. In Brazil they eat much more eat rice, beans and meat. The general taste of food is different, there's a lot more seasoning in Brazilian food. Also they eat a lot later. Jennifer likes the food from Brazil better. She said she'd rather be in Brazil right now because her cousin just moved there and she misses her. She likes it better than the island because there's nowhere to go. She says its not like that in Brazil. There's always something to do. There you see kids and people playing in the streets all the time. There the children are a lot freer. They are able to enjoy their childhood differently. She says if she doesn't end up living here, she's going to live somewhere where it's warm 24/7. She hates the cold. Jennifer loves to read. She likes to read in English better because it's easier for her and you can't find many Portuguese books here. Jennifer wants to be a cardio surgeon but she's thinking of doing something in psychology too. She isn't sure where she wants to go to college yet. Maybe here in the United States or she might go to Vitoria instead.

JE'VAUGHN CROOKS

Je'vaughn was born in Jamaica on December 16th, 1993. He moved to the Vineyard in 2008 when he was 14 years old. One of the biggest differences between here and Jamaica is the weather. Je'vaughn said he had never experienced winter until he moved here. He hates the winter here but loves the summer. The transition from Jamaica to the Vineyard wasn't hard besides getting used to the weather. He has gotten use to the culture part. Je'vaughn misses his family and friends back in Jamaica and just the Jamaican culture. He hasn't been back in the four years he's been here but he will be visiting this winter. Even though he misses Jamaica he said he sees it as a place to visit rather than live but maybe when he's retired from everything he'll return. "Moving here was a good change for me because it changed my life for the better. The people here welcomed me with open arms."

CLUBS AND ORGANIZATIONS

Yearbook Club

This club is responsible for all aspects of the development and organization of the High School yearbook after the class is over. The members this year were Truda Silberstein (Editor), Shivonne Schofield (Design Editor), Christine Janak (Design Editor), Annabelle Hackney (Junior Editor), Aaron Tives, Lauren Dostal (Assistant Editor) Hannah Moore, Lucy Hackney, and Anais Bermudes. We'd also like to give a special thanks to everyone in the class who also helped greatly in the making of this book.

Chess Club

Anyone who loves to play chess can find some good competition here. Chess players are able to use this club to help them form new strategies, and sharpen their skills. Last year the chess club went all the way to finals and came in second. Chess is about using your intellect in a strategic way but also about sportsmanship, patience, and thinking outside the box.

Newspaper Club

The Newspaper club works with the Martha's Vineyard Times to write and publish the High School View section o the weekly newspaper.

REBECCA AMOS INSTITUTE

The Rebecca Amos Institute is an alternative program for students here at MVRHS. RAI students and faculty work together to create an environment that fosters personal, social and scholastic growth for 11th and 12th graders. Classes are offered in small group settings with curriculum being driven by student need. RAI is designed to work with students who have the capacity to ask questions, persevere, and explore different styles of learning. All coursework follows the rigors established by the traditional MVRHS day program and supports students who are college bound as well as those interested in entering vocational programs upon graduation.

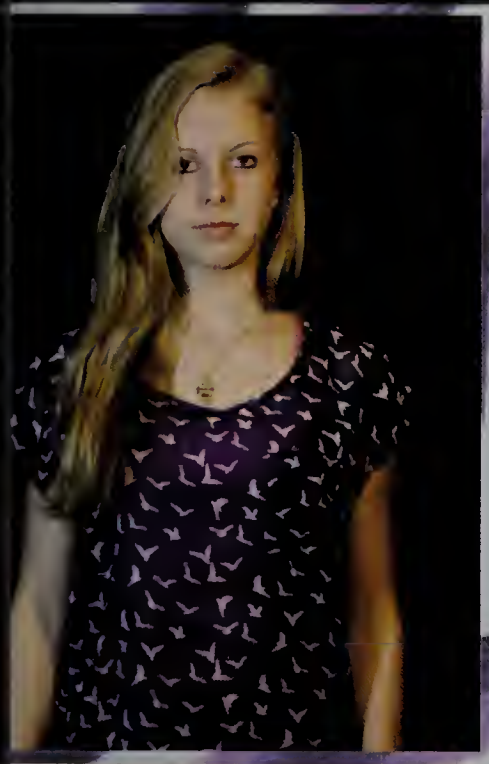
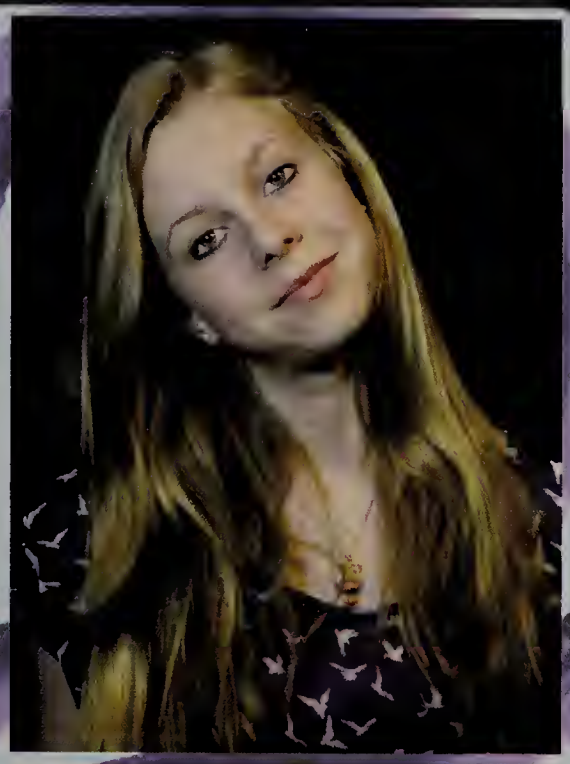
Freshmen Profiles

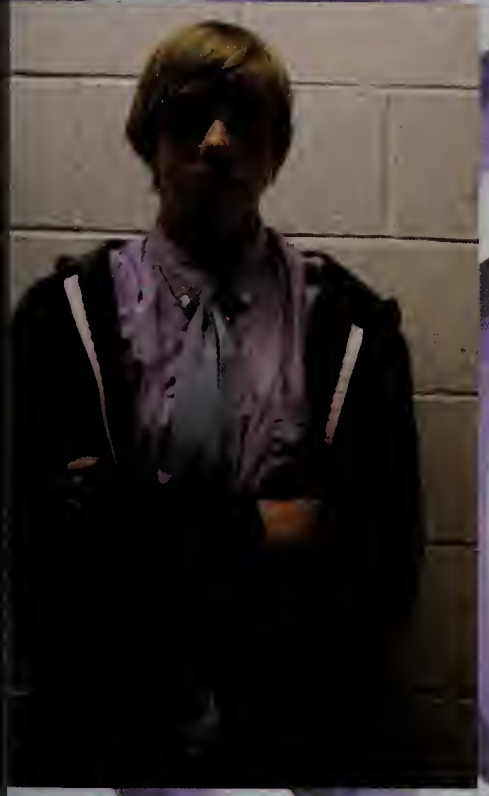
Gordon Moore I've been on the island since preschool. I like drawing, longboarding an woodwork. The sports that I play are soccer, sailing and windsurfing. I have always been interested in art because my family is made up of mostly artists. I enjoy music in general, bu mostly guitar and drums. I was first interested in guitar when I was six or seven, but my han were too small to really play. I revisited it about a year ago; it was an instant hit, and I've be playing ever since.

Lucy Hackney is a three season Varsity athlete, playing soccer, basketball and Lacrosse. Basketball is her favorite sport though, and she hopes to play at a college level eventually. Playing sports is important to her because she likes to be part of a team and m upperclassmen... and she is also very competitive. She has been playing the piano for eigh years, and sometimes she tries to play guitar too. She loves the ocean, traveling and photography. After high school, she wants to go to college and study medicine.

ais Bermudes is an Island native. She spent her first school years at Vineyard tessori School, followed by the West Tisbury School. Anais is a french name, pronounced niece." She lives on Scotsdale Farm, which is home to four ponies, but at its peak housed ly thirteen. She also owns goats, pigs, dogs and cats. Anais loves photography, and hopes it for a living one day. Rhode Island School of Design would be her school of choice Anais played piano since she was five years old and she loves to cook and bake. A vanilla lee she once made was so good that it was "gone in one night. That might have been use five people ate it, and it was kind of small, but still, it was awesome." The beach is re Anais would spend all of her time if she could, and she loves the ocean. Anais was -- and will always be -- an Island girl.







mmy Roberts I plays basketball, baseball, soccer, golf, and tennis. In my free time I like to bike ride, cook, collect sea glass, draw, swim, windsurf, skiing, and speak Chinese. I am a ge-level Chinese speaker. I have a stuffed hippo from when I was born, hippos are my favorite als. I like most music, but especially hip hop and rap. Also Aerosmith, Journey, and The Beatles. ad being a New Yorker likes the Giants and Mets. Whenever they beat New England teams, I to ridicule my friends about it. I do like the Celtics though. whenever I go to Celtics games, I like to k past the security guards to try to get autographs. I would love to play basketball in college. My n colleges to play at are Georgetown or Villanova. In middle school, I won 9 sports championships, elling bee and was treasurer and in 7th grade I went to a 3-week nerd camp.

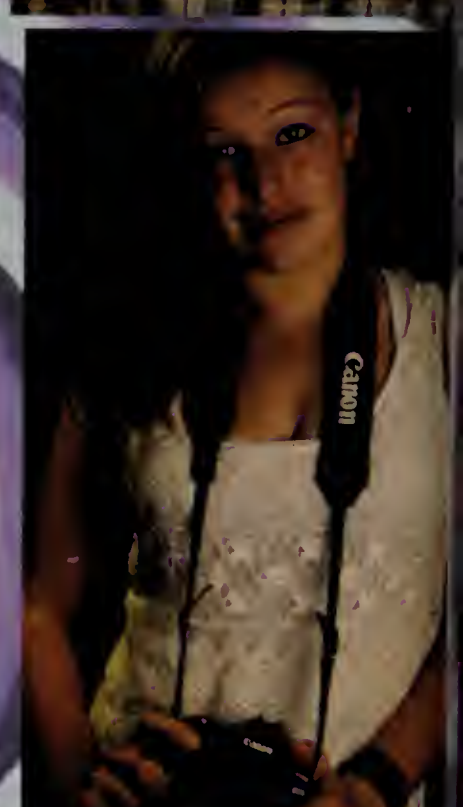
Alistair Morgan I have lived on the Vineyard for my whole life. I like to play the guitar and skateboard. I have been playing the guitar for six years, a now play mostly blues. I listen to most kinds of music, especially Stevie Ray Vaughan, John Mayer, and Jimi Hendrix. After high school I want to go to Berklee College of Music in Boston and pursue guitar.



Sadie Dix I have lived on the Vineyard, on a farm in Chilmark, since I was born. Next year I will be going to the Cambridge School of Weston. I'm looking forward to this new adventure, but I will definitely miss my friends. I play soccer and lacrosse, and enjoy horseback riding when I have time. Photography is one of my many interests, and this yea won a National Silver Key in the Scholastic Art & Writing Contest for my photo "Flesh Does Define Me." I love photography because it allows me to capture a moment and have it affe other people.

rah Strem Sophomore year has been one of many new ideas. There are so many s to follow and the opportunities are just waiting for me to grab a hold of. New classes, etics, music, clubs, community service. I am jumping right in and thinking about my er path. I think I want to pursue medicine or dentistry. In the meantime, in between ging with my friends, I am pursuing my passions in sports with my love for softball, ng music, creating artwork, photography, and mentoring young children while helping n to set their goals. Being a leader and a positive role model is important to me. I want to what I have learned and share it with others.

Hannah B. Moore
HI EVERYONE, In the Junior section of the yearbook for this year, we have a cool/interesting/weird talents page and at the moment it is empty, so all you undiscovered talented people should send you're amazing talents to the yearbook(not sure what the email is), you can also facebook it to me or any of the yearbook staff, OR write it down on one of the awesome "junior talents" survey sheets (found in the photo room) and give it to Mr.Barr(baer?), but yeah! You should all do it!

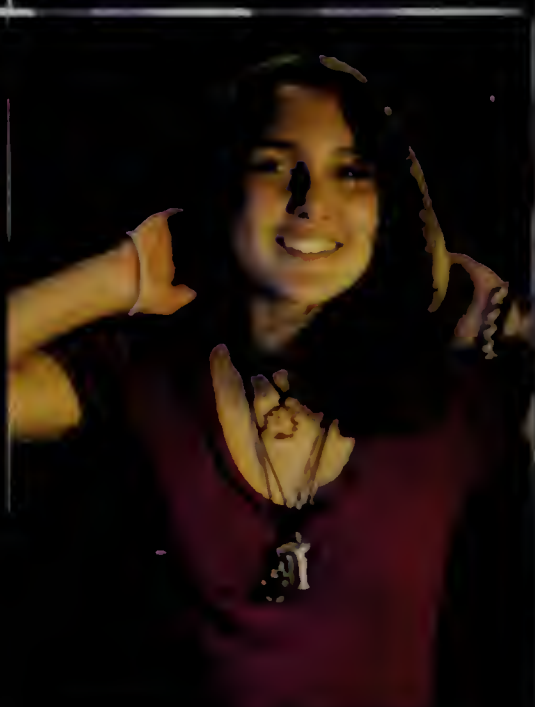
Forrest D'Olympia In my free time I play lacrosse, garden hydroponically, and climb on things. I enjoy things that involve boards; snowboarding, skateboarding, and longboarding. I also ha out with my friends a lot. We play music together. I play the bass, but I'm teaching myself piano . My favorite musicians are The Black Keys, Otis Redding, and Wu-tang. My favorite composer is Bach. I think Elephants and eating pasta are pretty chill. In the future I want to go to Sri Lanka and train cormorants to fish for me. I am thinking about college out West, possibly the University of Colorado, or maybe art school. I'm also planning on joining the Peace Corps at some point. If I don't become a artist, I think I would want to open a chain of pizza stores. I also enjoy roasting marshmallows in my chimea.



Ella Mahoney I am an Aquinnah Wanpanoag. I moved to the island full time when I was in fifth grade, after coming here for every vacation my whole life. I love the ocean and will go swimming year round no matter how cold it is. You will almost never see me without a hat unless it's the middle of the summer (or excessive amounts of jewelry). Making jewel is one of my favorite things to do along with drawing, exploring, finding new places, and, w too many other things to list! I have three cats, Sunshine, P.I.B, and Spice. My fish, Agent D ego, a blue beta, died this December. I'm bad at cleaning fish tanks... I play the ukulele, live at a bakery, thinks christmas lights not during christmas are wonderful, don't understand wh Angry Birds is so popular(it's just frustrating!) and love rain. I also want to be a children's book illustrator! THE END! :)

Justin D. Smith Apart from being a Varsity Tennis and Golf player for all three years of my high school career, I've also been on student government for that amount of time as well. In my free time I am a furious skier. I love pretty much everything outdoors. I have 3 dogs named Lily, Izzy, and Fenway, a rottweiler, french buul dog, and pekingese. Also I have an older brother named Taylor and a sister named Loughby. My dream is to go out West where the weather is warm and hopefully I will become part of a college golf team.

Sheila Sheelzy Mchugh I have lived on the island my whole life, in Edgartown. I have two brothers, both graduates of MVRHS and a cat named pinch, he drools and is obese. My mom talks to him in Russian; She doesn't know Russian. I hate when people touch my neck. Scarves are my favorite article of clothing; they protect my neck. I love my friends and dancing. My future aspirations include being a dancer, or dance teacher. I enjoy abbreviated words and folk dancing from Ireland, the country in which I hail from. My favorite animal would have to be the liger, or maybe an ant eater. My favorite colors are neon and white under strobbing black lights. When I am 18 I plan on getting a tiger tattoo across my lower back with the quote "Nothing matters when you're dead". I'm also naming my first child Dream Catcher Feather Sparrow. PEACE.

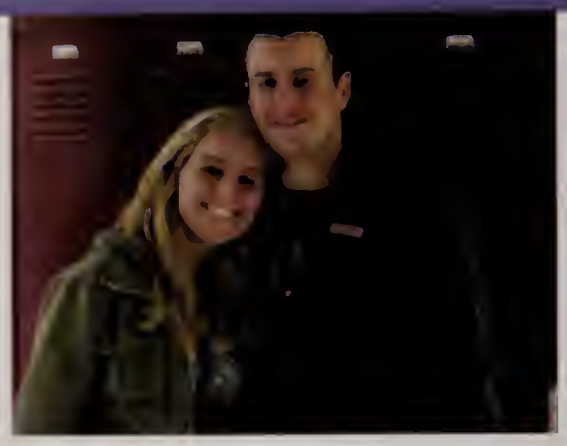
Senior Profiles

Conor Smith



Conor Smith was born on April 2nd, 1994. Conor is a clever, inspiring model-student. One of his most treasured memories from school is when he was chosen to be the captain o both the football and lacrosse teams. He describes his most embarrassing moment as, "I w at the beach with a bunch of my friends and one of the girls brought a friend from off-island. I asked the girl where she was from and she replied 'Wareham'. My response: 'I heard they have a Wal-Mart there!' BEST PICKUP LINE EVER!" Conor's future plan is to go to college and then, after graduating, to join the military! He will forever remember the times he has shared with his teammates and friends.

Kyle Altieri

Kyle Alteiri was born on April 27 of 1994 in Danbury Connecticut and moved to Martha's Vineyard four years later. Kyle has been greatly influenced by a trip he took to Bogot, Columbia with Will Jurcyzc. Kyle describes Colombians as "really friendly," and said that, " By seeing lots of poverty it made me appreciate what I have here." Kyle was also influenced by the death of his father during his Junior year. He dealt with this by staying strong. Next year, Kyle plans on attending Westfield State University to study criminal justic and become a police officer. To sum it all up, Kyle said: "I love money, beautiful places, anc the Yankees."

DIANA DE OLIVERIRA

Diana De Oliveira was born in Vitoria, Brazil on September 15, 1993. She has lived on Martha's Vineyard for almost all her life. She grew up living and participating in two very different cultures. She thinks one of the biggest differences between the two is the food. Not only are the types of food different, but the cooking styles are as well. She also says that there are a lot of different traditions, such as American/Brazilian tradition that the other doesn't have, or other culture's tradition that the counterpart doesn't have. Although she loves living here, there are also a lot of difficulties for her that comes along with living in the United States. You'd think that the hardest thing for me would me the language barrier, but it wasn't. Even though Portuguese is my first language, I learned English in Pre-School so that was never really a problem. The worst thing would probably be that a lot of people look at me and the first thing they see is 'Brazilian.' Then I go back to Brazil, and the first thing they see is 'American.' Most of the time it feels like I belong in two places, but sometimes it feels like I don't belong anywhere at all."

One of the most important things to her is her religion. She says that her faith helps her keep going, even when life gets hard. Because of how much religion means to her, she says that if she could meet anyone, living or dead, she would meet Jesus Christ.

Diana says that the best thing the high school gave her was a chance to experience the outside world through mentorship. It was because of the mentorship that she realized that she wanted to become a nurse. Now when she graduates, she plans on going to nursing school and following through with that dream.

Diana says her advice to future MVRHS students would be "Don't slack off because then teachers will not trust you. Think about you're future but also live in the present. Make new friends but keep the ones you've always had. Don't let high school ruin your friendships!"

Senior Profiles

EVA BALBONI

Eva was born on Martha's Vineyard on January 26th, 1994. She is a senior here at MVRHS and next year she plans to continue her education at the University of Rhode Island, majoring in nutrition. She said she choose this school because they had the majo she wanted and "when I visited URI it just sort of fell into place…I don't know whatever k of feeling you are supposed to get when you find the right school, but I got it there". Seni year for her has been completely different than all the other years. There have been a to great experiences and a lot of tight friendships but also a lot of stress and work. Eva's going to take a bunch of great memoires with her next year and she says that none can shine above the rest. She's just really happy to have had such a great experience at MVRHS even though she's ready to move on.

Eva has always been one of those people who has bitten off more than they can chew. She have been a co-president of Saferides, a member of peer outreach, a cross country captain, a varsity track runner, a horse back rider. She took half this year and put it into becoming an EMT and she's in National Honor Society.

ALYSSA ADLER

"Born and raised in West Tisbury, I've stayed in the s place my entire life. Now, after 18 years, I'm finally movin the Island and heading south to attend Elon University whe be majoring in both Environmental Studies and Spanish. A from it's beautiful campus that basically looks like Edgartov the summer, Elon's amazing study abroad program is wha ally drew me in. I know that just about every high school se says that they want to travel during college, but after trav the world with my family from such a young age, I know t need to continue to travel and experience diversity and cu for myself before throwing myself into the future.

Antone Lima

Tony has lived on the island his whole life. He describes himself as gregarious, hrdworking and FUN! His future plans are to go to school for environmental or aerospace egineering and join the airfare as a pilot.

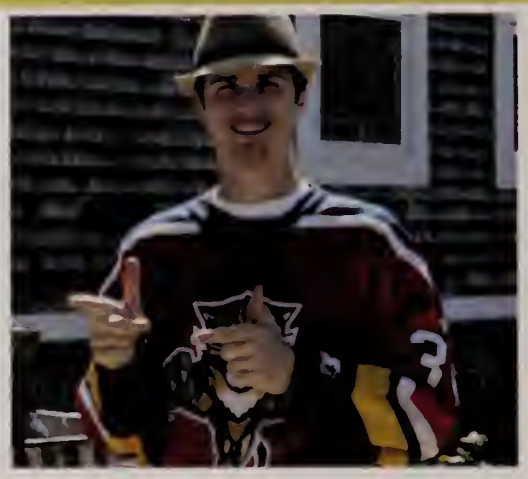
Tony was born on June 19,1994. A few of his favorite high school moments were kyaking in gym class, spending his summer dune surfing at beach parties at Norton Point, ad when he tied Mike Montanile to a tree with a roll of Duct tape!

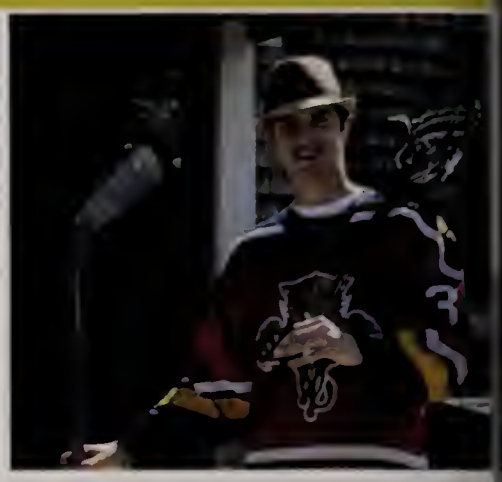
I've been playing tennis since middle school and after three years of playing on the vrsity girl's team I've been awarded the co-captain position for my senior year. Though tennis hs taken up a lot of my time, you can almost always find me spending time with friends, hnging out at the beach, or reading. I'm actually a pretty big book worm – I can't remember th last time I spent more than a few days without reading at least two books at a time.

Sorry to the underclassmen reading this, but movies and television have definitely grified senior year because this has honestly been the most stressful year of my life. From aplying to colleges and scholarships to deciding where I want to spend the next four years of my life, I've never had to work so hard and make so many life decisions. I always say that I can't wait to leave the Vineyard and finally experience everything that "off-island" has to offer, b after growing up in such a close community I really can't imagine what it will be like without th friends I've made here."

Senior Profiles

Colby Gouldrup





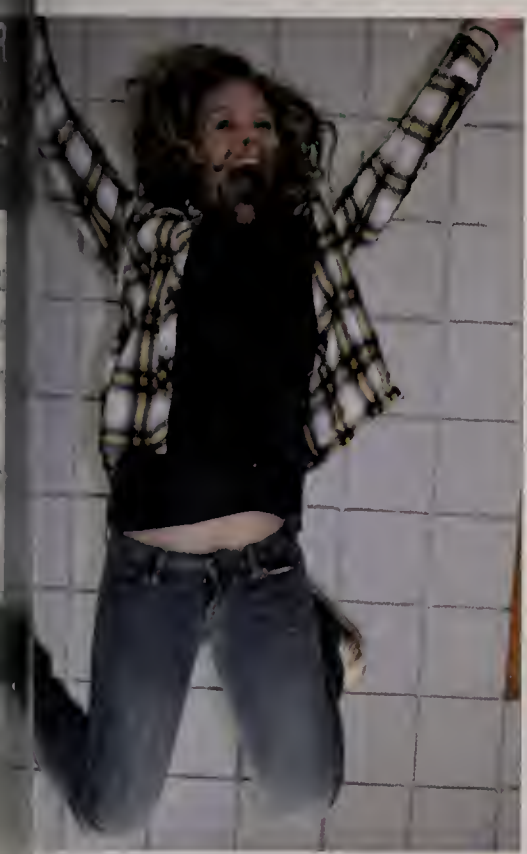
"I'm a tri-town kid (represent!). I've played varsity lacrosse and ice hockey since I was a freshman. But I do a lot more than that - I also like to throw pottery, go surfing, and enjoy the natural beauty of the Vineyard. I was offered to play junior A ice hockey in Toronto Canada ne year but have decided to attend Coastal Carolina University to play lacrosse and enjoy the warm weather. Although I'll be leaving next fall I will always stick to my Island roots. I couldn't be any more satisfied on where I grew up."

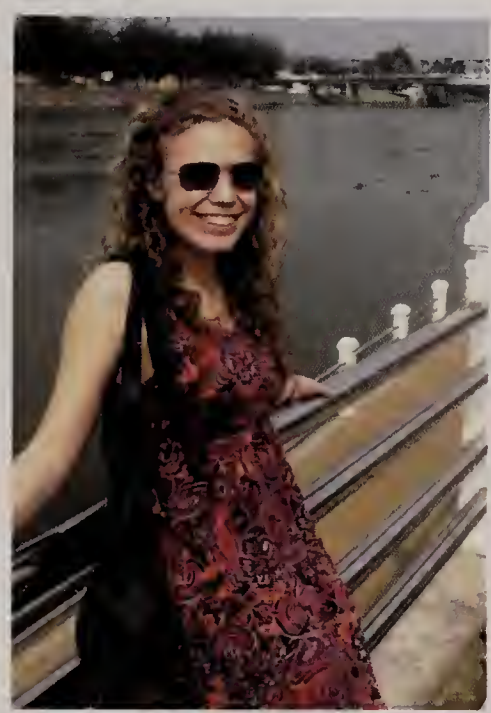
Ian Tripp

"When I moved to West Tisbury from Lo Angeles late in the 6th grade, I'll admit that I wa way out of my element. Casual clothing went from friday-and-weekends to the everyday, Spanish Missions were gone from the curriculu and rampant sarcasm was a fact of life - not to mention the fact that there were actual seasons But despite the challenges of my sudden and confus ing immersion, I'd be lying if I said that I hadn't learned to love it here. My somewhat distanced perspective has given me such a view of the remarkable community here - both the Regional's and the Island's at large - that I honestly wouldn't trade it for the experience of full integration. This year I took a leap of faith and auditioned for the Minnesing returning to the performing arts department after my Junior year hiatus of gra focus and a month-long trip to Nepal; and just as the MVRHS became my favorite sub-community within the Island, the Minnies have become my favori sub-community within the MVRHS

After high school, I'm happy to say that I'll be diving into new experien at Bard College in New York, where I intend to thoroughly explore my acaden options before choosing a moderation (though probably biology).

Emmajean Holley





"I was born on Martha's Vineyard and have lived here my whole life. I grew up in what is technically Vineyard Haven (though I only live a stone's throw from the Scottish Bakehouse, which makes me feel more like a West Tisbury resident) and I went to the Tisbury School. Next year, I'll be lucky enough to go to Brown University. I applied as an English major because reading and writing are fundamental parts of who I am and how I relate with the world. But really, I'm interested in such an wide range of subjects that I'm still severely lacking in terms of career options. So I'm looking forward to all the enlightenment that college is sure to bring. I've learned a lot about myself throughout high school – what works for me and what doesn't, what matters to me and what doesn't. But every challenge I've faced has also been a magnificent learning opportunity (as I now know most challenges are), and I'm so grateful to the people and purposes that have helped me grow and improve through it all. Although I'm a bit directionless right now, I know that I want whatever I do with my life to be meaningful and important: I want to be a giver to the world, not a taker, because I think we're all meant to use the natural gifts we've been given to increase beauty and happiness in the world. Ironically, I've always been a little terrified of the autonomy and self-awareness that this requires. But right now, that leap of independence is what I want more than anything else in the world!"

ORDEM E PROGRESSO
These years have taught all of us how to be strong, how to be a true friend and how to accept people for who they are. Along the way we met teachers who made a difference in our lives. People who believed that we could be all we wanted to be and more.

Now, we finally realize that we could have waited to get older. We realize that time has somehow slipped away and soon we will be saying good-bye. Saying good-bye to our friends, our family, our home. Maybe for a short time ... maybe forever. Soon we will go to our graduation, sit for the last time with everyone together. It is the last time we will all be together, recognized as the class of 2012. Now we are getting excited about starting over, getting sad about what we will leave behind, getting anxious to move on. Now we realize just how important our best friends are, how much fun we really did have in the four years. Now we wish we could be younger. We wish we could have taken the time to appreciate every moment ... to slow down time. Now we hate having to say good-bye.
